Interreg Meuse-Rhine (NL-BE-DE) supports cross-border cooperation in the border triangle of the Netherlands, Belgium, and Germany with EU funding to foster social and economic cohesion. With a €125 million budget for 2021-2027, it aims to create a smarter, greener and more social region with better Interreg governance through innovative projects across borders.

Companies in the Euregio Meuse-Rhine region are struggling to find people trained in circularity, especially when it comes to collaborating with other countries. Existing training programmes do not yet adequately address this need. That is why universities and companies are joining forces to develop a new educational programme. This programme will help students learn more about circularity, both in their own country and across borders.

Students will take classes at various universities in the region and do internships at companies. This will give them a lot of practical experience and teach them to work with people from other countries. The project will also ensuring that young professionals skills are recognized across borders.

Companies benefit because they can find well-trained people more easily. The project also supports European sustainability goals. A total of €2.36 million has been made available for this project.
