“

Eline is born to be a teacher. If she is in front of the class, you know for sure that both didactics as pedagogics are optimal. She is trained for being a teacher at secondary education and at tertiary level, being the all-round teacher I know. She is a very appreciated colleague, as we were used to work together in the Master of Evidence Based Innovation in Teaching, she as a methodology teacher and me as the coordinator of educational sciences.

The short room distance and her open attitude made sure that we learned a lot from each other, discussing the supervision of students on a regular basis. Although teaching and education is in her hart, I still hope that once, she will return to the academic world as her conscientiousness, analytic mind, methodological expertise and joyful attitude is missed.
